Criteria concerning the use of images

Use of images

Any photos are searchable worldwide, retrievable and changeable when published on the Internet. Consequently, re-use of these photos by third parties can therefore not be excluded. Also, for example, for online versions of fliers or brochures, further distribution on the Internet cannot be ruled out. The "effect for the future" of a revocation means that all use made on the basis of the consent remain legal – printed posters, for example, can still be used. When publishing group photos, the subsequent revocation of one individual does not imply that the photo must be removed from the website.

Provision of photos

A provision of photos to third parties does not take place without your consent.
